FCI Dublin

On December 31, 2011, Frank Leif, FCI Dublin Senior Officer, was driving home when he saw a car that had crashed into the freeway's concrete center divide. Officer Leif immediately stopped, called 911, and observed that the single occupant in the vehicle was conscious, but had facial lacerations. He directed oncoming traffic around the scene and, with the assistance of an off-duty California Highway Patrol officer, was able to move the victim to the shoulder of the freeway until emergency personnel arrived.

FMC Lexington

On January 2, 2012, Mary Anderson, FMC Lexington Special Investigative Agent, was traveling on Interstate 70 during inclement weather. She observed a pickup truck careen off the right side of the road and flip over into a ditch. At the same time, a mini-van slid off the left side of the road landing on its side. Ms. Anderson first assisted the occupants of the overturned pickup truck and moved them to safety. She then stopped traffic so she could cross the road to check on the occupants of the mini-van, who were able to crawl out of their vehicle. Ms. Anderson assessed all the victims for injuries and assisted the emergency personnel who arrived at the scene.

FCI Oxford

Officers Jacobs (l) and Bennett (r) immediately stopped to provide assistance to the driver who appeared to have suffered minor injuries. Correctional Officer Mike Jacobs, on his way to work, also stopped at the scene to assist.

On December 12, 2011, FCI Oxford Senior Officer James Bennett was driving home when he came upon the scene of an overturned vehicle. Officer Bennett
